

Message from the President

This past year has been one of re-direction for the Middle Rio Grande Water Assembly. As a neutral convener on Middle Rio Grande water issues, we were not causing the desired impact on the region's water resiliency. We decided instead to become an advocacy organization focused on causing improved water administration and planning. Accordingly, we renamed ourselves Middle Rio Grande Water Advocates, extended our geographic coverage, and adopted a substantially revised mission, which is:

The purpose of the MRG Water Advocates is to create a sustainable, resilient water future for the Middle Rio Grande (Otowri Bridge to Elephant Butte Dam) by seeking allies, advocating for, and demanding water management and administration decisions and actions consistent with best available science and applicable law.

New Mexico is faced with, but has not faced up to, important water resource limitations: downstream delivery obligations, federally mandated requirements, and state-permitted water uses and authorizations that substantially exceed sustainable supplies. Without action to address articulated problems, our current and future water supplies as well as our pocketbooks are at risk.

Making the Case for Change is a proposal on how to start facing up to our risks. In summary, the core initiatives to address those problems are:

- Strengthen leadership and capacity in appropriate state agencies
- Use Compact constraints to drive water administration
- Reform water planning to be an effective management tool
- Base decisions on hydrologic and analytic reality
- Fund the reforms with a significant one-time two-year appropriation

Beginning with this Council, the Water Advocates seek to build political will that stimulates action on all or part of the proposal. Join us to press for better water policy and strategies to manage our over-committed, declining water resources.
